FOR LIFE.

The attorneys for Mrs. Steussy, the Monroe murderess, decided to withdraw their motion for a new trial in her case, and she was at once sentenced, and was yesterday taken to Waupun in company with her paramour, Bram, who had been brought down to testify on her trial. It is said that Mrs. Steussy did not want a new trial, and told her attorneys that if they obtained one she would not go into court again, and that they had to use considerable persuasion to induce her to allow the attempt to prove her insane. "I did it," she said, "and I don't want to try to get out of it." When brought up for sentence she was impassive as usual, and sat with bowed head until called up to the bar. During the solemn scene which followed the judge and many of the spectators were greatly affected. She kept her face covered with her handkerchief, and made no demonstration except to shake her head when asked if she had anything to say. The conclusion of the judge's remarks was as follows:

"I know from the facts disclosed on the trial that your lot here in life was a hard one, and I think and believe that if you would have been surrounded by different circumstances and by happier influences, your condition in life would have been far different from what it is now, and must continue to be for some time in the future. I think, though the sentence which the court is bound to pronounce must fall with crushing weight upon you, yet it is the duty of the court to pronounce it. There is only one source of comfort to which I can point you to look, and that is to something higher and better than an earthly power. It is only in the Divine compassion and mercy of the Lord that you can hope for any comfort and consolation in this, your greatest hour of trouble; and I trust you will look to that source, for I know of none other. To be cut down as you are in the prime of life, in your greatest usefulness, and to have those holy and tender ties existing between parent and children severed at once, and apparently forever in this life, is the greatest affliction that can fall upon a mother. I would not willingly say one word to add to your present misery, and will only express the hope that you will look to Him who is plentiful in mercy, and who is ever ready to forgive the truly penitent. The sentence of the court, then, you, Margaret Steussy, for the crime for which you have been convicted, be punished by confinement at hard labor in the state prison of this state, from to-day at the hour of twelve o'clock, for and during the period of your natural life; and that the first day of your confinement be solitary, and on the fifth day of November of each succeeding year, for and during the period of your confinement, your imprisonment also be solitary."

The prisoner walked steadily away through the crowded court room, but her face was wet with tears.

POPE'S SPRINGS.

The beautiful Plover grounds for the Janesville people.

Captain Alexander Buchholz, of the steamer Enterprise, has taken a lease of the beautiful grounds, four miles up the river, known as Pope's Springs, and will immediately prepare them for the accommodation of picnic parties, both private and public, intending to run his steamer in connection therewith. Our people are well acquainted with the location of these beautiful grounds, and Captain Buchholz will expend considerable money in improvements around the springs, and clearing up the grove, making it the most inviting place for parties to assemble to be found on the banks of Rock river. He will also make the grounds accessible by teams as well as by boats. One of the conditions of the lease is that no liquors shall be sold or allowed on the grounds, and this, Captain Buchholz says, he will enforce. The grounds will be completed and ready to accommodate parties early in May, when terms and conditions will be made known. Pope's Springs will no doubt become a popular place of resort during the summer, under such orderly arrangements, and we trust Captain Buchholz will be liberally patronized in his efforts to furnish the people with so pleasant a place to spend a day in a beautiful grove on the river and out of the business of the city.

OBITUARY.

DANIEL WITTINGTON.

Died, on the evening of the twelfth inst., in the town of Rock, Mr. Daniel Wittington, at the advanced age of eighty-four years. The deceased was a native of Pennsylvania. In his early manhood days he settled at what is now Akron, Ohio, where he engaged in the jewelry business. He subsequently followed the same occupation for a number of years at Ashland, Ohio, from which place he removed in the spring of 1847, to the then territory of Wisconsin, and settled on his late home in the town of Rock, and engaged in the business of farming. Though a man of a quiet and unobtrusive disposition—always living at peace with his friends and neighbors—he was nevertheless a man of fine intellect, of sterling integrity, and possessing great mechanical ingenuity. He loved the peace and quiet of his home so much, that he never left it unless absolutely necessary. His beloved wife preceded him to the grave some fourteen years. They had ten children, all of whom are living, and who deeply mourn their great loss. Their names and residences are as follows: Mrs. Elizabeth Sutherland, Janesville; Mr. C. B. Wittington, Janesville; Mrs. Harriet Loeck, Plymouth; Mrs. Sarah Tripp, Byron, N. Y.; Mrs. Agnes Scott, Bradford, Wis.; Mrs. Flora Bemis, Evansville, Wis.; Mr. Peter Wittington, Montana; his sons, John and George, and his daughter Emma, reside on the homestead in the town of Rock.

Thus has passed to that bourne from which no traveler returns, another of Rock county's most respected and beloved citizens. Funeral services will be held at his late residence, to-morrow, Sunday, the 13th inst., at 1 o'clock p. m., Rev. Dr. Hodge officiating.

To escape the worthless abominations offered under the title of Baking Powder, rests wholly with the consumers; they are the ones that have to suffer. Purchase only those articles you know by experience to be pure. Dr. Fries' Cream Baking Powder, sold by Stearns & Baker, has been found to be the most perfect and wholesome.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

The last thing done by Judge Bennett, before leaving Monroe yesterday afternoon, was to hear a divorce case. He announced that he would grant the divorce, and court was then adjourned and the judge went to the depot to take the train for home. The woman in the case was the plaintiff, and was quite young and prepossessing, and her attorney had been informed that the first use she would make of her freedom would be to get married again, and the ceremony was to be performed as soon as she reached her home, which is some miles in the country.

A few minutes after the adjournment of court, her attorney discovered that his client was missing, and on inquiry found that she had gone home, believing herself single again. As she was not yet divorced and would not be until the necessary papers had been prepared and signed by the judge, and a decree then issued by the clerk of the court, the gravity of the situation was apparent. The attorney, with his client hurrying off to commit bigamy, and the court on his way to the depot and home, where his signature could not be obtained for a couple of days, set down to make out the papers in a state of perspiration not quite warranted by the condition of the thermometer. The train was just starting when he rushed up to the depot with a couple of inkly looking sheets of legal cap fluttering in his hand, and the obliging conductor stopped the train and waited while the judge went into the freight office and signed the precious document, in time to legalize the fair plaintiff's second matrimonial venture, which it is to be hoped will be more fortunate than the first one.

They Relieved at Once.
